Governor Tyler would not allow these recommendations to be made public, and their nature can only be surmised from expressions of members of the board in conversation.

It is known that a Northern capitalist recently spent several days in this section with the view of selecting an eligible location for a vegetable can-ning factory. He was most favorably ning factory. He was most favorably impressed with Lambert's Point, and the old celluloid factory buildings. After several interviews with the Norfolk gentlemen in charge of this property, he left for the North, with the intention of returning at an early day. Yesterday a representative of the Virginian-Pilot applied to a gentleman who is in possession of the facts for detalled information. He said that while he could confirm the report, as above outlined, he did not feel at liberty to give the prospector's name, but that on his return to Norfolk he believed an arrangement would be made by which a large vegetable canning plant would be established at the point mentioned.
